

Have You Heard About BI and Re-Entry?

Correctional professionals know BI Incorporated because of our electronic monitoring systems, which have been used to monitor over 4 million offenders by over 2,700 government agencies in all 50 states.

What many professionals in corrections may not know is that BI is also dedicated to providing re-entry services. For the past 10 years, BI has been at the forefront of the offender re-entry movement, providing full-service re-entry centers to Departments of Corrections in Colorado, Illinois, Louisiana, New Jersey, and New Mexico. These centers have dramatically reduced offender recidivism and helped thousands of offenders learn to live a crime-free life.

Congratulations Joan Petersilia, on the publication of your new book, "When Prisoners Come Home." Thank you for years of dedicated work to further the science of community corrections. And thank you for chronicling our Chicago Re-Entry program on pages 100 - 101 of the new book.

Chicago Re-Entry Center Success

Three-year recidivism results from BI's Chicago Re-Entry Center program, operated for the Illinois Department of Corrections, indicate a 40.6 percent reduction in new criminal convictions.* Illinois taxpayers saved $3.6 million, and 263 new felonies were avoided in the first three years of the center's operations. Similar outcomes can be achieved in communities throughout the county.

* The study compared 1503 program participants, including those who did not complete the program, to a control group of 871 closely matched parolees who did not participate in the program.
